ASEE ANNUAL REPORT 2023

SUPPORTING DIVERSITY

ASEE this year showed its commitment to diversity in engineering education by responding swiftly and clearly to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling on race-conscious admissions. ASEE shared recommendations to support diversity across college campuses in the wake of the High Court's 6-3 decision banning race-conscious admissions. And ASEE led a group of 21 professional societies who expressed their concerns about state legislation targeting diversity, equity, and inclusion, and shared their policy positions with legislators in Florida and Texas.

NEW LEADERSHIP

This year, ASEE's Board of Directors appointed Dr. Jacqueline El-Sayed as Executive Director and Chief Executive Officer; Patricia Greenawalt to the newly created role of Chief Operating Officer; and Jaime Ulloa as its Chief Financial Officer. See: https://bit.ly/ASEEnews

Dr. Jacqueline El-Sayed joined ASEE headquarters in December 2019 as Chief Academic Officer. In this role, she founded ASEE Learning Services and revitalized and expanded ASEE's grant-funded research. She has been an active ASEE member since 2004 and has served in both division and EDC leadership roles. She is the first woman to hold the position of ASEE Executive Director.

Ms. Patricia Greenawalt joined ASEE in 2005 as Conference Director and ascended through roles including Managing Director of Member Services, Chief Community Officer, and Acting Chief Operating Officer. She has more than 30 years of experience in the association and convention management industry.

Mr. Jaime Ulloa brings more than 17 years of experience in financial management and leadership to the society, including his time as ASEE's Controller and Director of Accounting for 18 months through May 2021. He has a bachelor's degree in accounting and a Master of Business Administration (MBA) degree from the University of Maryland. He earned his Certified Public Accountant (CPA) license from the Commonwealth of Virginia.
